			Lovely! Good use of layers Great use of opacity blending and multiple layers There's an issue on the left hand side where the image could be more closely cropped Avoid using "Brightness/Contrast" as it degrades an image. Use Levels (cmd-L) or Curves for contrast adjustments. Great job for a beginning project. I like the composite; interesting to view.

		Missing: Original scan Source images I like the idea and the theme of this. You've done some nice things with the musical notes and perspective, and you've cleaned up the scan very nicely. The "watches" need to be more skewed to fit the rims and need to be toned down to match the brightness of the vehicle's paint. One minor note: not sure you need the clocks on the inside rims. For a beginning project, this is not bad. Make sure you saved as a Photoshop file (you saved as a TIF) so that you can preserve all editing capability. It should be a PSD, not a TIF.

		This project, while a good theme and idea, lacks the time, effort, and concern that needs to be put forth for a composite project. This appears to be nothing more than a cut and paste job. You did some good work around the child's head ... it's a start, but the assignment asked for a seamless composite where it's difficult to tell that the image is crafted rather than assembled. I think the theme was a great start, but you could have done more with this.

I like that you've learned how to use layer masks. You obviously spent a lot of time with those. However, your project seems like a hodgepodge of cut/paste objects without a theme or sense that any of these things "belong" in the scene (or in front of the scenery). No color correction/levels/curves applied. This project needs to be seamless and needs to match tonality throughout.

Save as PSD, not TIF. PSD = Photoshop Document, which preserves all editing capabilities. I love the fades between objects and the things you've done with layer visibility/opacity. Some of the cut/paste items are evident -- get rid of hard edges. This piece has a LOT of potential and could be fantastic with some cleanup. Try to make it such that not every object competes for your attention. Guide people into the image. Some areas are "sloppy" -- brush strokes that aren't necessarily part of the piece, etc. Great theme, good solid project.

		Good project. Good use of layer masking and color correction. Tones match fairly well.
